in a decision dismissing the proceedings instituted by the State Comptroller to tax certain property left to Arthur Astor Carey by Mrs. Laura Astor Delano, who died June, 1902, the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court handed down an opinion resterday attacking the constitutionality of a clause of the Inheritance Tax law as amended in 1897. Mrs. Delano received in 1848 from her father, William Backhouse Astor, a deed for property in Lafayette place and in 1849 another deed of $50,000 worth of publicdebt certificates of Ohio. Both deeds were witnessed by James G. Gallatin and John Jacob Astor, Jr., and in each was a clause providing that at Mrs. Delano's death the property was to go to her issue or to that of brothers or sisters, with an additional clause giving her power of appointment over the property should she desire to leave n to any particular one of the issue.

In her will she exercised this power by saming Arthur Astor Carey as the devised of the property. After the will was probated the State Comptroller notified Mr. Carey to appear in proceedings for the assessment of an inheritance tax on the property. Mr. Carey appeared only to object to the surrogate's jurisdiction over the proper ty and to make a motion for the dismissal of the proceedings. This motion was de-nied and an appeal was taken, in which Mr. Carey's contention was sustained.

The Appellate Division cites the clause under which it was sought to tax the property named in the deeds. It is Subsection 5, section 220, chapter 284, of the Laws of 1897 and reads as follows.

Mhenever any person or corporation shall exercise a power of appointment derived from any disposition of property made either before or after the passage of this act, such appointment when made shall be deemed a transfer, taxable under the provisions of this act in the same manner as though the property to which such appointment relates belonged absolutely to the donee of such object, and had been bequeathed or devised by such donee by will.

The conjuon then reads:

The opinion then reads: In terms this amendment would seemingly apply to the property here in question, because a studied effort has been made by the language employed in the act to destroy any distinction between the disposition of property under a power of appointment made "before or after" the passage of

The opinion adds that the rights of Mr. Carey in the deeds were created by the donor of the power, W. B. Astor, and not by the donee. Mrs. Delano, and that they were vested rights.

Continuing, the Court says:

Continuing, the Court says:

To impose a tax upon a transfer by deed is the exercise of the general taxing power of the State; while a tax on a power of appointment which has been created by will is a succession tax depending upon a transfer brought about by death. It is not claimed for this amendment of 1897 that it was the exercise of the general taxing power of the State; and to be supported, therefore, it must be, if at all, upon the theory that it imposes a succession tax.

amendment of 1897 that it was the exercise of the general taxing power of the State; and to be supported, therefore, it must be, if at all, upon the theory that it imposes a succession tax.

It is not, however, within the power of the Legislature merely by calling a tax one upon the right of succession, to impose what in substance and effect is a tax upon property in terms, unquestionably, the Legislature has called the estate which the relator has received a succession, and upon the right to such succession has attempted to impose a tax; but it cannot change the legal nature or character of the property interest by applying to it a name, nor can it impose a tax upon property which the relator has received under the deeds of W. B. Astor, given in 1848 and 1849, by subsequently enacting that to such property the relator has anoceded under the will of Laura Astor Delano, and that as to it a tax is due, as a tax upon the right of succession, as though it was property bequesthed or devised by her.

Having in mind, therefore, the fact that the relator obtained his property rights by deed and not by will, and at a time when there was no transfer tax or inheritance tax law in existence, and that he does not obtain his estate by right of succession under the will of Laura Astor Delano, but acquires it under the deeds of W. B. Astor, which were in no sense testamentary in character, but were made many years before the grantor's death, it follows, we think, that the attempt of the Legislature to tax such property rights cannot succeed and for the reasons that we have briefly outlined, namely, that to uphold the tax here sought to be imposed under the guise of taxing a right of succession would in fact be to sanction a tax upon property, and for that purpose to give to the amendment of 1897 a retroactive effect which would be violative of the Constitution.

I awyers who read this opinion yester-day said that if sustained by the Court of Appeals it would have an important beering on all cases where property is deeded, with a power of appointment, solely to avoid the payment of the inheri-tance tax.

WIDENING SOTH STREET. Arguments For and Against Slieing Off the North Side Buildings.

A number of property owners of the neighborhood were at the public hearing of the Board of Estimate yesterday. Most of them favored the widening on the south side. It has been estimated that to improve the street from the north side will cost $5,100,000, and from the south side, $4,416,000.

Charles A. Peabody, representing the Astor estate, said that if the north side plan were adhered to the Netherland Hotel would get $3,000,000 for the damage that would be done to the building. E. B. Bloomingdale advocated the making of an $0-foot street. His experience, he said, had shown that a street $0 feet wide was more successful than one 100 feet wide. He condemned as destructive to vested interests the proposal which has been advanced to turn some of the traffic from the new bridge into Fifty-seventh street. Mr. Bloomingdale submitted a brief favoring the widening of the street on the south side.

A judgment for $933.67 has been filed in the County Clerk's office in Brooklyn against the County Clerk's office in Brooklyn against the Episcopal Church of the Epiphany, McDonough street and Tompkins avenue, in favor of Mrs. Jame Dows Nies, the wife of the Rev. James Buchanan Nies, who was rector of the church from 1893 to 1895. The church was financially embarrassed in 1896 and Mrs. Nies, on Dec. 1, 1896, advanced to 1896 and Mrs. Nies, on Dec. 1, 1896, advanced this amount with interest and costs. Mrs. Nies is a daughter of Alexander E. Orr of the Rapid Transit Commission, and the members of the church did not think she would ever sue for the money. Mrs. Nies, who is living at the Hotel Margaret, declined to discuss the matter.

Only recently the Rev. Dr. Dean Richmond Babbitt, the present rector, succeeded in wiping out a mortgage debt on the church of $33,000.

wine and liquor sold over the bar. It was also resolved to do away as much as possible with cheese on lunch counters.

John Bernard presided. The meeting was under direction of the Williamsburg Liquor Dealers' Association. Morris Tekulsky, a former president of the State Liquor Dealers' Association, advised all those present who were not enrolled in the association to join and organize on the principle of manhood and business, and not on the principle of buying police protection.

Christopher Haedioot declared it was absolutely false that there was a bribe fund to defeat the passage of the Liquor Tax bill. He said that although the liquor dealers of Greater New York contributed $13,000,000 into the State Treasury the liquor dealers were not even recognized as citizens, as was shown when Mayor Low recently refused to see a delegation of them.

It was at Mr. Haefloot's suggestion that resolutions to sell beer by the pound and to put a ban on cheese were drawn up and adopted.

CHARGES AGAINST HERZ.

Jockey Coburn Says Owner Offered to Place Bet of $100 for Him.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 17.-Shortly after the second race was decided here to-day, Jockey Coburn entered the judges' stand and preferred sensational charges against Emil Herz of the racing firm of Durnell & Herz. Coburn said that Herz had offered to place at $100 bet for him on Golden Rule, the Durnell & Herz favorite for the fifth race. Coburn had already been engaged to ride R. H. Brown's If You Dare in this race. Herz entered a flat denial of everything that Coburn charged. In the absence of witnesses the judges announced that one man's word was as good as another's, but the charges would be probed to the bottom.

After the party left the track Coburn and Durnell renewed the quarrel. It is alleged Coburn was the aggressor in the fight that followed, and Mrs. Durnell who accompanied her husband, assisted in disarrning him when he would have drawn his revolver.

Coburn enjoyed a good day in a financial way. He started in a faro game last night with a $100 bill and pulled out $1,400 to the good. To-day he had the mount on Thane in the fourth race, and, beating the barrier, made a runaway race of it and cashed a bet of $500, which he had on his mount.

He had always been a Manhattan policeman and was sent to Brooklyn by Col. Partridge when Miles O'Reilly was brought over to the Oak street station.

Gen. Greene also made two new captains yesterday. Sergt. Nicholas Condon of the Ralph avenue station, Brooklyn was promoted and sent to command the De Kalb avenue station. Sergt. David Evans of the Fort Hamilton station was also made a captain and sent to command the Fourth avenue station in Brooklyn. Capt. Cullen of that station goes to the Bath Beach precinct, to succeed Capt. Campbell, who is sent to the Amity street station, left vacant by the retirement of Capt. Vredenburgh.

Anton Hanslion, the Austrian globe trotter who, on a $1,000 wager, is pushing his wife and little girl around the world in a perambulator, was sent back to Ellis Island yesterday with his wife. The Board of Special Inquiry will decide to-day whether or not the Hanslions should be deported.

be in line with all the other associations of the United States. It is almost a foregone conclusion that the age limit of the national association will be 21 years, and for the local association not to change would be to a disadvantage at a championship meet. Although considerable opposition has been shown toward Farrelly's movement, it is thought likely that the local association will come to his way of thinking and change the age limit to 21 years.

The advisory committee of the local association, however, has a hand in the matter. The constitution cannot be amended or changed without its sanction. Chairman Rhoads of the advisory committee said yesterday that he thought the change a good one in some cases; that is, when a school has a big membership. It, however, would be the reverse for the other schools. He further said tifat a special meeting of the local association would be held in a few days to act on the many amendments proposed. He does not think the amendment to the one-year rule will go through, but if it should the advisory board would certainly not sanction it.

In speaking of the National Interscholastic Athletic Association. Chairman Rhoads said: "I think it would be a grand success, if it could be organized on the proper lines. Something dught to be done to regulate the age limit at open games. It is not right to have boys competing with men, or, in other words, boys who are far above the age limit."

The executive committee of the United States Golf Association will meet to-night at the New York Yacht Club to discuss the conditions of the amateur championship, to be held at the Nassau Country Club during the week of Aug. 28. The golfing fixtures on the life to the day include the Philadelphia week of Aug. 28. The goifing fixtures on the links to-day include the Philadelphia and Baltimore team match at Baltimore. Lawrenceville School plays at Princeton and Yale at the New Haven Country Club; the first monthly handicap will be played at St. Andrews; a bogey handicap for the James H. James L. Batchelder of Lawrenceville School won the championship of the Interscholastic Golf Association, yesterday, at the Westbrook Golf Club, by beating Paul Murphy of St. Paul's School, Garden City, in the eighteen-hole final round, by 4 up and 3 to play. He is the fourth holder of the title and won outright the prize presented by Cutler School, which has always offered the trophies in this tournament. Lawrenceville also won the team match, and, as it was the first time the school has taken part in the Interscholastic meeting its representatives were well satisfied at the close of play. The winner is a staiwart youth nearly six feet in height, and besides driving an extremely long ball plays in perfect style. Murphy, who beat F. O Reinhart at the Garden City club tournament last year, is also a finished player and at thirty-six holes he might have won out, but in the eighteen-hole dash he stood no chance. They played together in the team match, which was at medal play, and Murphy did 8s to Batchelder's 93, which would have made him 2 up at match play.

Four schools took part in the team match, the scores being as follows:

Lawrenceville—J. L. Batchelder, 81; C. Truesdale, 88; Roy De Raismes, 88; A. Mitchell, 98. Total, 388.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 17.—The Navy Athletic Association has been conducting negotiations with the athletic authorities of West Point through Col. R. M. Thompson of West Point through Col. R. M. Thompson of New fork city for the purpose of having the baseball contest between the two institutions restored to this season's schedule. The efforts have not been a success, however, and the game has now been finally abandoned. It is stated to-day by one of the members of the executive board of the association that the navy had made known their willingness to play West Point under any conditions that institution proposed. The original contention on the part of Annapolis was for eligibility rules, but they were willing to waive them and also willing to play without the first class, which was graduated ahead of time. They further stated that they would play under any conditions proposed by West Point. West Point, however, declined to play under any conditions and has scheduled a game with Annapolis. Annapolis has therefore abandoned the idea of meeting the army this year.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 17.—The Weld senior class crew won the championship at Harvard this afternoon in one of the most exciting races that have been at Cambridge for many a day. Of the other three crews two were swamped and had to be taken aboard the launch John had to be taken aboard the launch John Harvard, which followed the race for rescuing purposes. The freshman boat was able to row home, but had to go slowly and drop out of the race. The men in the junior and sophomore boats were in the water up to their chests, and after being taken on the launch, where they were huddled around the boiler, they were landed at the Longwood bridge and sent home on the run, a distance of a mile. This is the first time that crews have been swamped at Harvard since 1898, when all five crews in the race went down. Several men were ready to jump out of the swamped boats to-day, but they were ordered to keep boats to-day, but they were ordered to keep their seats, and there was no trouble is getting them aboard the launch.

In the race to-day were the Weld senior, junior sophomore and freshmen boats which won their heats with their Newell rivals in the preliminary races last week and the Newell law school crew. The race was rowed upstream over the one-and-seven-eighths of a mile course in the Charles River basin from the Union Boat Club to the Longwood bridge.

The Weld s miors got the batter of the start, closely followed by the freshmen, while the Law School crew was the last away. At the Harvard bridge, which is the half-way mark, the seniors had a safe lead, with the freshmen second and the Law School third. The juniors and sophomores, who were in the roughest water, had their boats more than half filled with water and were out of the race. The seniors went under the arch of the draw span, and in the sheltered water spurted, thereby increasing their lead to a length over the Law School crew, which had passed the freshmen beat in the spurt.

A half mile from the finish the juniors and sophomores were taken aboard the launch, and the freshmen were put out of the race. The Law School crew on a beautiful spurt almost caught the seniors, but the latter tan up the stroke and finished in the final spurt a length shead of the "lawyers." Harry Forbes of Chicago had no trouble Harry Forbes of Chicago had no trouble in retaining his title of bantam champion against "Big" Mackey at Findlay, Ohio, on Thursday night. The boys came together for ten rounds at 116 pounds. Although the contest went the limit, Forbes showed his superiority throughout. He did most of the foreing, landing clean blows and blocking Mackey's rushes with comparative ease. Mackey frequently fell to avoid punishment. Not a knockdown was scored, although both sported tiny mouses under the eyes when they left the ring. Forbes got the decision.

5 P. M. Friday. The Story of Andrew Jackson.

By MARY C. FRANCIS.

Over 250 prominent newspapers have reviewed the book, in nearly every case devoting columns of space praising Miss Francis work. It is doubtful if any novel ever published anywhere has received so much praise from the "critics" as "A Son of Destiny."

The Evening Journal Says—
To every American who believes in and hopes for the perpetuity of Democratic institutions the name of "Andrew Jackson" should be an inspiration to hope, a shield against doubt and despondency.

name of "Andrew Jackson" should be an inspiration to hope, a shield against doubt and despondency.

The Nashville American Says—

"A Son of Destiny" is a splendid book and one that captures interest and imagination from the first, never to lose its hold. It is a splendid story, splendidly told.

The Cincinnati Post Says—Aiready the critics have taken up "A Son of Destiny" and pronounced it a work of exceptional historical value, while the sales have jumped to a figure that assure Miss Francis ample reward for her efforts.

The Cincinnati Emaulier Says—

"A Son of Destiny" at once takes rank with "The Conqueror." The book is already having a strong run, and it will be widely read.

The Brooklyn Baily Eagle Says—
It is a fascinating and impressive novel.

The Chicago Record Herald Says—

The most graphic, picturesque and accurate study of a stirring epoch.

The Syracuse Herald Says—

Miss Francis has achieved a success that is not lightly won in the world of letters. "A Son of Destiny" merits wide attention.

The Philadelphia Press Says—

The author has made a thoroughly real, intercosing and dramatic story. The book is sure of a cordial welcome and wide reading.

The Style is careful, studied and dignified, and the manner is dramatic.

The author has come in possession of little known documents that throw a new light on Jackson's career.

The New York Times "Book Supplement" Says—Miss Francis seems to have given a greal deal of hard and well-directed study to her subject and to have striven to reproduce the manners and very atmosphere of the Jackson Epoch—the chief political incidents of this period are dwelt upon and the social life of Washington in the twenties is graphically pictured.
